

Julie Lucido is a freelance director and associate member of the Stage Directors & Choreography Society. With a degree from University of California, Santa Cruz, Lucido has been working in theatre for over thirty years and has experience in live and commercial performances, film and TV spots, as well as radio and local theatre. A performer who acts, sings, and dances, she also works as a choreographer and director. Julie Lucido is a founding member of the Backyard Readers Theatre Lab and has directed such shows as Man of La Mancha, Annie Get Your Gun, and Inherit the Wind, among many other titles. In the past, Lucido has worked as an adjunct acting professor at Fresno City College, a director and choreographer for The Junior Company and is currently a freelance acting coach and workshop instructor while serving as Education Director for Children's Musical Theaterworks.